Work underway on Bypass 4 widening

The long-awaited widening of Bypass 4 is well underway. Crews began preparation for the construction starting in early spring, with roadwork getting underway in mid summer. While some delays can be expected from time to time, traffic along Bypass 4 will be maintained during the construction.

Currently, Hamilton-Mason Road is closed to traffic at the west side of the Bypass. The road will re-open in late November when crews stop work for winter. The east side of Hamilton-Mason will close to traffic in April 2011 when work resumes in the spring.

The widening adds a lane in each direction, with three lanes in each direction between Symmes and Tylersville Roads. Intersections at Hamilton-Mason, Tylersville and Symmes Roads will be transformed into "superstreet intersections" that will offer greatly improved safety to motorists.

The superstreet intersection essentially eliminates a typical crossroad design, minimizing exposure of motorists to side-impact accidents.

The intersection at State Route 4 at the south end of the Bypass will also be reconfigured in the final phases of The intersection of Bypass 4 with State Rote 4 and Ross Road will see significant changes as part of the Bypass 4 widening project. Diversion roads will channel traffic away from a traditional intersection design to help improve traffic flow and maximize safety.

- construction to include "diversion roads" for access to either SR 4 or Ross Road, which currently is a traditional intersection where the Bypass ends.

- The project, which costs a total of $9.3 million, is the result of a coordinated effort among the City of Fairfield, Hamilton, Butler County, Fairfield Township, the Butler County Engineer's Office, the Butler County Transportation Improvement District (TID), and the Ohio Department of Transportation.

The road work within Fairfield is expected to be completed by the end of 2011, with the entire project expected to be completed by the summer of 2012.

Currently, the widening project

- extends from the south end of the Bypass to just south of State Route 129. The Butler County TID is developing plans that could extended the widening effort northward.

Reserves play critical role in City's finances

It's no secret; governments are feeling the effects of the economic recession. Dependency on property and income taxes, which are paid in arrears, means that the impact of economic changes on local governments lags 18 months behind those changes. Leading experts expect Ohio's economy to begin turning around sometime in 2012. If that is the case, recovery for counties and local governments will follow shortly thereafter. This recovery will be slow and take many years to get to the pre-recession level. The City of Fairfield is feeling the effects of the economic recession with a decrease in property values, slowing home sales, fluctuating income taxes on profit and decreasing return on investments all leading to a projected decrease in revenues for 2010.

So, one might ask why is Fairfield doing better than most other communities? The answer begins with the employers located in Fairfield. Employers have kept their employee staffing levels relatively stable throughout this economic recession. And with that stability, comes a consistent flow of income taxes from payroll, commonly called withholding taxes. Withholding taxes provide on average 75% of the City's income tax revenue or around $17 million annually.

The answer to the question continues with the conservative fiscal philosophy of the City Council and Administration. Though the City is using reserves to cover contractual obligations in 2010, the City was able to maintain its bond rating (similar to an individual's credit score) of Aa1 with Moody's Investor Service. With approximately 9% of cities and special districts — about 360 of them — throughout the U.S. rated by Moody's as having a rating of Aa1 or better, Fairfield remains in good company.

Total revenues as of June 2010, are tracking slightly above projections, which were based on a 4% reduction from 2009. Those additional revenues are reducing the amount of reserves needed to operate, but have not eliminated the need to use reserves. The City will continue its efforts to increase revenues and keep costs down throughout 2010 and into 2011 and beyond, in order to provide the level of service the residents and businesses have come to expect.

Federal grant to fund new fire equipment

Since 2002, the Fairfield Fire Department has received more than $800,000 in grant funding from the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA). The most recent grant is a $287,200 award for the purchase of new breathing equipment used by firefighters when entering a burning structure.

The most recent funding is part of FEMA's Assistance for Firefighters Grant (AFG) program which provides equipment vital to communities based on their needs and risk assessments. Fairfield's current need is to replace aging breathing equipment which is approaching the end of its useful life.

The new equipment is expected to last at least 10 years, so firefighters are currently testing five different units to collectively determine which features they like or dislike. The feedback will then be reviewed, along with warranties, customer support, serviceability and cost.

Also part of the grant is funding to further enhance training for personnel who drive emergency units. The funds will allow the department to purchase a video system used in driver training.

The AFG funding is a 90/10 split, with the City paying only 10 percent of the cost for the equipment identified in the application. In the case of the most recent grant, Fairfield will be able to maximize local funding by spending less than $29,000 to receive $287,200 worth of important gear.

Lieutenant/Paramedic Tom Wagner coordinates the detailed applications required for FEMA grants. Over the years, he's been extremely successful in securing funding. His efforts are responsible for attracting funds for new turnout gear (the thermal protective clothing worn by firefighters), thermal imaging equipment (which enables firefighters to see through thick smoke), new radios and computer equipment.

NEAT: helping maximize property values

In difficult economic times, communities and homeowners can face extraordinary challenges. Crime can increase, communities can sometimes overlook needs and property owners may delay repairs that ultimately and collectively have an adverse impact on property values.

Early in the recession, Fairfield City Council focused on measures that would maximize property values in every neighborhood. One measure introduced by Council last year was the establishment of the Fairfield Neighborhood Enhancement Action Team (NEAT).

Well into its second year, the NEAT program is a unique coordination of services designed

- to proactively review and enhance neighborhoods with involvement of personnel from Public Works, Police, and Building & Zoning Division of Development Services.

Four neighborhoods have been reviewed so far this year with several more scheduled. Before the team reviews an

- area, a survey is typically mailed to residents providing them with an opportunity to list any areas which should be reviewed.

- When officials tour a neighborhood, they hope to identify ways to deter crime, make appropriate enhancements in areas of right-of-way, ensure continued delivery of supportive services to neighborhoods, and identify maintenance needs deemed violations of the City's property maintenance codes.

- Individual homeowners are responsible for property maintenance, preserving their property values and contributing to each neighborhood as integral parts of the city and its continued growth and well-being.

- Residents who have questions about the NEAT program or those with specific concerns may call the Zoning Hotline at 867-5321.

Property Maintenance Hotline
867-5321

If you have concerns about a maintenance issue or need to report an address where grass is not being cut, call to speak with a zoning inspector.

Messages left after business hours are addressed the next business day.

What are the most common zoning complaints?

Often, residents are unaware that City rules and regulations affect their private property. Like most other cities across the country, the property maintenance code adopted in the City of Fairfield Codified Ordinances was developed to ensure that properties are maintained in good condition so that Fairfield will remain a community where people want to live and work, as well as to keep property values at their maximum.

Violations of Fairfield's property maintenance codes are identified by zoning inspectors who drive through neighborhoods or by a neighbor's complaint called to the City's Zoning Hotline at 867-5321.

Some of the more common maintenance violations include:

- High grass & weeds
- Roofs and gutters not maintained
- Swimming pools and associated safety devices, both inground and above-ground, not maintained properly
- Inoperative and/or unlicensed motor vehicles or trailers are not permitted to remain on properties in the City
- Parking a motor vehicle or trailer in the

- grass or on gravel is prohibited
  - Rubbish and garbage
- Actual property maintenance violations for the first six months of 2010 are shown in the chart below.
- Residents who see a property that looks as if it has been abandoned, has unkept grass over

- eight inches tall, or other property maintenance issues can call the Zoning Hotline to ensure that the issue can be addressed.
- Residents calling the Zoning Hot Line do not need to identify themselves and can talk directly with a zoning inspector, or can leave a voice message after hours.

Signal connections help speed area commutes

Motorists in Fairfield may have noticed the installation of ADA-compliant curb ramps at major intersections, but they may not have realized that the same project also included installing brighter and energy efficient LED traffic and pedestrian signals. Something else they may not realize is that signals are being connected to work as a system along major highways.

For several years, some signals have operated together in specific areas. Last year, however, the Fairfield Public Works Department began upgrading signals at major intersections so that areas can be tied together to further improve traffic flows through the City. The improvement program is expected to be finished by the end of August, allowing signals to be controlled from a central location. The desired result will be fewer snarls and smoother flowing traffic on Fairfield's major roadways.

Once timing is complete, the centralized control system will help motorists avoid having to stop at each and every traffic light, controlled to cycle lights in special situations.

At those major intersections, observant drivers may have noticed video cameras overlooking traffic. The devices allow for real-time monitoring of traffic conditions in the event timing needs to be adjusted. The cameras, which can be tilted and turned by a remote operator, are similar to those used on television stations when reporting on traffic conditions along the interstates.

The cameras do not record images and are designed for observing traffic. They are not intended to be used in traffic enforcement, although

- which — up until now — pretty much cycled

- fiber-optic lines and computer servers so that
- timing can be pre-set or independently
- dispatchers at the City's Communications
- Center can tie into the network to provide

- emergency call, such as an accident, fire or

Generator ready at Muskopf station

The Fairfield Public Utilities Department is getting closer to being able to provide water service to residents even during extended periods without regional power supplies. Crews recently completed the installation of a large power generator at the Muskopf Road area pumping station.

The pumping station now can be disconnected from the power grid and operated indefinitely, providing the generator can be refueled. The generator also gives the Public Utilities Department an alternative to reduce energy loads on Duke Energy if a need arises to reduce peak demands. During such periods,

- the City receives monetary incentives to
- reduce energy usage. Those incentives could
- be weighed against the cost of operating the
- generator.

Following the windstorm of 2008, Fairfield began installing emergency power generators to critical operations. A massive generator was already on order to power the Water Treatment Plant at the time of the storm.

Later this year, an additional water well will be equipped to operate via generator,

- providing the entire water system with the - ability to operate for long periods during
- emergencies that result in widespread power
- outages.

The passion of Smart Energy Solutions

As concern mounts about the environmental impact of the oil spill on the Gulf of Mexico, green energy and renewable energy sources are gaining in popularity. One local company is providing solar energy solutions here in Fairfield. Smart Energy Solutions, located at 2028 Bohlke Drive, has developed and built the area's first public solar powered electric vehicle charging station. Company owner (and Fairfield resident) Al Fischer is passionate about providing a clean, independent energy future for generations to come.

"We are excited to be a part of Fairfield's energy future," he said.

North SR 4 to get landscaping

More landscaping is coming to Route 4 this fall! The City of Fairfield has been awarded a second Transportation Enhancement Grant to landscape the northern section of State Route 4, between Symmes Road and the railroad overpass.

The work will not only compliment the landscaping located at the southern end of Route 4, but will also add landscaping to the base of the

The 60 solar panels used for the vehicle charging station also provide 25-30 percent of the power required by the company's neighboring manufacturing plant. This, combined with energy conservation and several energy efficient building upgrades, has reduced the building's energy bill by more than 50 percent. There is also a federal tax credit that covers part of the cost, allowing this 30-year source of energy to be paid for in less than three years.

Also unique to the site is a sign in front of the building showing visitors and passers-by how much energy the solar panels generate. It acts as an educational tool to showcase solar energy and its effectiveness in this region.

Smart Energy Solutions can help local businesses and residents with a variety of energy saving options, including energy education and conservation tips, renewable energy, and smart grid technology.

Even a few simple solutions can help save energy and money. For more information or a free consultation about energy solutions, contact Matt Kuhn at (513) 317-4953 or go to www.tfgsmartenergy.com. 🌐

Chamber's popular Business Showcase returns October 6

Mark your calendars for the Fairfield Chamber of Commerce annual Business Showcase event. This year's theme is "Business Carnival". The Showcase will be held on Wednesday, October 6, at Receptions Conference Center, 5975 Boymel Drive.

Events include the annual luncheon from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m., the showcase from 1:30 to 6:00 p.m., and the popular Taste of Fairfield from 4:00 to 6:00 p.m.

For information, visit www.FairfieldChamber.com or call 881-5500 for details as the date draws nearer.

Patterson Drive will soon have a new and improved look. Pavement will be replaced with colorful landscaped medians, more street trees will be planted along the entire length of the road, and a new gateway feature will be constructed at the northwest corner of Pleasant Avenue and Patterson Drive.

In order to be sustainable and cost efficient, the landscape medians will be planted with native species that do not require much water. This will eliminate the need for an irrigation system. The City obtained a $200,000 grant to pay for all the improvements.

Construction is expected to begin at the end of August and last through the end of October. The road will remain open to traffic during construction.

The streetscape project will compliment the extensive private redevelopment now underway in the area. The owner of the former Fair Plaza shopping center is in the middle of a redevelopment of the 1960s era center. Interior and exterior building renovations, parking lot improvements, and new signage and landscaping will give it a modern neighborhood commercial feel. Adjacent to the shopping center, plans call for a three-story senior housing facility. Collectively, these two private developments have been named "Patterson Place".

For more information, contact Erin Donovan, Planning Manager, at 867-5345.

Local vendors making sales at City events

During the summer months, the City organizes many events at Village Green Park. Not only are these events great fun for Fairfield families, but they are also great opportunities for local food vendors to make sales and gain exposure.

The Fairfield Parks & Recreation Department contracts with numerous area restaurants and vendors to add local flavor to the events.

An example is the Groovin' on the Green Concert Series. "Groovin' on the Green has such a diverse offering of musical tastes that we wanted to match that in terms of the concessions offered at the events", says Events Manager Ben Strickler. "The Fairfield area has such a rich offering of restaurants that we are able to offer quality food for all of the concert goers."

Hammann's Butcher Shop, Deli & Catering is one

Fairfield business that benefited from the exposure. The family-owned business not only sells traditional meats and other deli items, but they've recently found success in catering events. The company had a tent at several events earlier this summer, and their pulled pork sandwich was a big seller.

Owner Rob Hammann reports that working the events was extremely valuable. "Not only were they overall profitable, but we made a lot of new customer contacts." He appreciated the opportunity from the City. "The City was very welcoming and it worked out well for everyone."

Hammann's Butcher Shop, Deli & Catering is located at 6180 Winton Road. Visit www.hammannscatering.com or call 858-3237 for information.

For more information on vendor opportunities at future City events, contact the Fairfield Parks & Recreation Department at 867-5348.

BY YOKANAAN KEARNS

BASED ON HOMER'S "THE ILIAD"

PRESENTED BY PLAYHOUSE OFF THE HILL!

The Greek warrior Achilles refuses to fight in the Trojan War, leading to disastrous results for both the Greeks and their enemy. Dramatic scenes in the mortal world alternate with comic scenes on Mt. Olympus, where the gods fight their own, often ridiculous "war" to see which side will win. Funny, nimble, and accessible, Dis/Troy retains the eloquence and complexity of Homer's well-known classic. Ages 10 and up.

This is a family event and children 15 and under must be accompanied by an adult. This program will allow patrons to do something they normally would not be permitted — bring in floats. Families will enjoy watching a movie on a large screen visible from the deep end and the zero depth entrance of the water. Viewers can also stay dry by watching the movie from the pool deck. Floating filmgoers may for the only time during the season, bring their own inner tubes, floats or air mattresses. The movie will begin at dusk and all play features and slide will be turned off. And like all good theaters, the pool will offer popcorn, candy and other concessions. Without the sticky floor! Viewing will be limited for this special event and the Fairfield Aquatic Center reserves the right to refuse entrance for safety concerns if capacity is met.

Careful about tree placement near power lines

A tree planted in the right location can help make a house a home. In the summer, trees shade homes from the summer sun, reducing temperatures indoors. In the winter, trees help protect from cold winter winds. However, trees can also get in the way of providing safe and reliable electric service.

Trees planted improperly under or near power lines pose a potential safety hazard. In fact, tree branches that come into contact with power lines are the number-one cause of momentary short circuits (flickering lights) and major outages, especially when combined with thunderstorms, high winds, sleet or snow.

Customer growth and the 2003 Northeast power blackout have heightened awareness that transmission line right-of-ways must be free and clear of vegetation and other obstacles. The Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC) has recently adopted new mandatory rules that include stiff penalties against utilities that fail to meet the new standards for reliability of the power grid.

To ensure that customers receive reliable electric service, Duke Energy manages and maintains transmission right-of-ways by controlling vegetation. Duke has the authority to cut or prune trees and keep the right-of-way clear of obstructions. In certain circumstances, some vegetation may be left in the right-of-way if it does not pose a hazard to the safe operation of the line. Duke Energy is committed to balance the needs to ensure safe and reliable service for communities with residents' concerns and expectations.

Customers with effected property will receive information by mail or door hanger packets prior to any line clearing explaining the work being performed and how debris will be handled. If a system reliability issue is identified, Duke Energy may need to take immediate action if the risk of an outage is determined to be significant.

Customers can help by planning their landscaping to avoid placing trees and shrubs within 10 feet of a tower structure and within 20 feet of a transmission power line. Duke Energy works to appropriately balance safety, reliability and aesthetics in Fairfield.

Where will they turn up next...

Utility Director David Crouch admits that he is often amazed at what his workers from the Wastewater Division are able to accomplish outside of their divisional boundaries. While staying on top of their regular duties, workers recently volunteered to install a special environmentally friendly paver grid as part of the walking trail through the new Memorial Grove at Nilles Road and Banker Drive.

That project was in addition to overseeing the design and construction of the new spray ground water park earlier this summer at the Aquatic Center. Last year, the guys took on a major remodeling project at the Wastewater Treatment Plant to build a needed work area. Their dedication saved tens of thousands of dollars over contracting the work.

But that's still not all. Crews from the Wastewater Collection System joined forces with the Public Works Department to inspect problem storm sewers using the portable television equipment employed regularly in the wastewater networks.

"If they have the skill, they find the time," David said.

Field of Dreams honors duo

The bronze casting of Joe Nuxhall stands in lasting tribute adjacent to what used to be called Field #7 years ago at Waterworks Park. There, the Reds Rookie Success League provides scores of children an opportunity to play baseball. It was a field on which Joe's son, Kim, even played ball as a child some 45-plus years ago.

It seemed only fitting that the field be dedicated to the Ol' Lefthander and his broadcasting partner of 31 years, Marty Brennaman.

So it was — on that hot Monday afternoon on June 28 — old field #7 was forever renamed the Marty and Joe Field. But the naming of the field was more about friendship than it was just baseball, noted Kim, whose pride in his father still shines brightly three years after Joe's passing.

The Marty and Joe Field, sponsored by the Reds Community Fund, is the main field at the ballpark, which is a complex of 12 baseball fields.

Cardboard Recycling Done Right!

1 Place your cardboard inside your recycling bin, recycling cart or local drop box. Curbside customers who need more space may place the cardboard under their recycling containers. Keep recycling materials away from your trash can so they are not confused with trash. Always place recycling materials on the opposite side of the driveway. (Please do not use a cardboard box as a recycling or trash receptacle.)

Recycle these items too:

- Paperboard (such as cereal boxes)
- Plastic bottles (no lids or bowls, please)
- Glass jars and bottles of any color
- Aluminum and steel cans
- Empty aerosol cans (please remove lids and tips)
- Brown grocery bags
- Office paper
- envelopes (with or without windows)
- Junk mail
- Magazines
- Newspapers (and inserts)
- Telephone books

2 Break down cardboard into pieces no larger than 3 feet by 3 feet. Anything larger will not easily fit into many recycling trucks or will likely clog the automated sorting equipment at the recycling facility.

3 If you have followed these guidelines and experience a problem with cardboard recycling collection, contact Rumpke (toll free) at 1-800-582-3107 or at cincinnati.market@rumpke.com

Fact:

More than 60 percent of the materials disposed in the landfill could have been recycled. The majority of that material is fiber, such as cardboard!

PLEASE RECYCLE!

Butler County offers a variety of convenient recycling programs. All of them are free and easy to use. While most are as easy as dropping off an item, the Appliance Recycling Program is as easy as making a call and placing an unwanted appliance at the curb (The service even removes the freon at no charge). It doesn't get any easier.

If it can be recycled, there is a program available to utilize. Most programs operate through September, so plan on cleaning out the garage and basement before winter. Here's a summary:

Computer & Television Recycling Drop Off Program

Where: Butler County Engineer's Office
1921 Fairgrove Avenue • Hamilton

When: 2nd & 3rd Saturdays
April through September

Hours: 9 a.m. - 1 p.m.

What: CPUs, hard drives, monitors, televisions (all formats: cathode ray tubes, LCD, plasma, etc.), desktop printers, scanners, fax machines, cell phones, cordless phones, VCRs, DVD players, compact discs

Limit of 2 televisions and 5 computer systems per household.

Curbside Freon Appliance Collection

Where: Call for pick-up, then place unit at curb or driveway

When: Service began in the spring

What: Appliances which contain freon (refrigerators, freezers, air conditioners, dehumidifiers)

Call: 1-888-886-9268 to schedule pick-up

A certified Freon technician will remove the Freon at no cost to you. Appliances will be managed for recycling and reuse.

Household Hazardous Waste Drop Off Program

Where: Environmental Enterprises, Inc.
10163 Cincinnati-Dayton Road, West Chester

When: Every Thursday
June through September

Hours: 2 - 7 p.m.

What: Paint, automotive fluids, oil, pesticides, pool chemicals, compact fluorescent bulbs, varnishes, lacquers, long fluorescent tubes, antifreeze, car and household batteries and adhesives.

Compact Fluorescent Lightbulbs

While extremely energy efficient, these type of lightbulbs contain a potentially dangerous mercury gas that should not be inhaled or released into the environment. Used compact fluorescent bulbs can be dropped off at the local Home Depot or the IKEA store for safe processing.

Home Depot
Fairfield Township • off Princeton Road

Home Depot
West Chester • 7749 Dudley Drive

Use Wisely Dispose Responsibly

Fairfield Police offer referrals to help area senior citizens

Good police work often comes from careful observation. With that fact in mind, the Fairfield Police Department has introduced a referral program for senior citizens so that officers can help connect someone in need with a service that's ready to help.

The program is intended for officers, however, citizens who know someone in need can tell police about a resident who might need some help. An officer will respond and initiate a report that is then forwarded to an agency or group that can help.

The police referral program includes areas such as a need for clothing, caretaking, property upkeep, food and utilities shut-off. Officers complete a card that is channeled to Crime Prevention Officer Dennis Valentini who then seeks available ways to help the individual.

If there is a need for some clean-up outside in the yard, as an example, a request might be handed over to volunteers for their next service event. Too often, Officer Valentini noted, people know where a senior citizen might live from the way his yard might appear, opening him up to all kinds of danger from an opportunist. With caring citizens ready and willing to help, that small task can be addressed.

It doesn't have to be a maintenance issue, whatever the need, the referral program seeks to find a solution to help someone living in the City.

Those with a service ready to donate or who may know someone in need, can contact Officer Valentini at 896-8292.

EMERGENCY: Help responders find you fast

Those who have ever called 9-1-1 know how seconds seem like minutes and minutes seem like hours awaiting for emergency crews to arrive. In Fairfield, fire stations are located so that firefighters or paramedics can arrive in most neighborhoods within four minutes. Finding a street is only the first hurdle, finding a specific address can take away precious time that can spell the difference between life and death.

Thanks to the 9-1-1 system, an address is usually displayed on the dispatcher's screen. But there is more to finding a location than just an address. When calling for assistance, especially if using a cellular telephone, help responders locate the emergency by providing the dispatcher with an address and any landmarks, such as the nearest cross street or the color of the house.

When the dispatcher provides instructions to hang up, go outside to the street (or send someone outside) to flag down emergency units so they are not slowed by having to look for house numbers.

Even before an emergency, make sure house numbers are readily visible from the street. Consider installing house numbers on both sides of a mailbox since emergency crews may approach from either direction.

It's not the movies, so don't store gas devices in your home

Somehow, the movies make it look cool. Some dude drives his motorcycle up the steps and into his living room. Or an old car is in a dining area for body work. Remember, that's the movies.

The reality is that gas-fueled (or liquid fuel) devices of any type simply are not allowed to be stored in a living area. Fire codes even prohibit the operation or repair of such devices inside, except in a few special cases.

Buildings or rooms that are specifically for storage, operation or repair of liquid-fuel devices can be built, providing they comply with building codes. The Fire Prevention Bureau can provide authorization to store maintenance equipment indoors if the total fuel capacity does not exceed 10 gallons. If unauthorized equipment is discovered inside, a Fire Inspector can require removal of equipment deemed hazardous.

For more information, call the Fire Prevention Bureau at 867-5378.

Arson costs everybody...

Every fire is investigated, even those that appear to be of the most obvious origin. The data is helpful in compiling statistics and developing educational programs to prevent other fires in similar situations.

In cases where a fire is suspicious, an investigator is assigned to look deeper into a cause. Even though fire destroys property, it does not destroy evidence. Time consuming sampling and study can produce evidence that not only can send an arsonist to prison, but it can provide a property owner or insurance company with the evidence needed to win a civil suit and/or to recover losses.

Arson costs the community twice. When a building is destroyed, the result is a higher tax burden on other property owners. In addition, unsolved arson cases cause insurance premiums to increase.

Anyone with knowledge of an arson case can call the Fire Prevention Bureau at 867-5378 to confidentially offer information that could be helpful in solving an open case.

Going above and beyond... Fairfield STARS

A Police Officer, Information Technology Analyst and an entire crew of Water Department employees have been recognized in the first quarter for going above and beyond the call of their duty to make a difference in the lives of others while tending to their regular duties. Each have been honored with a STAR award:

Aaron Meyer

Aaron Meyer is Fairfield's newest Police Officer and already is making a difference in the lives of those with whom he is involved, according to Kathy Becker, CEO of Transitional Living, an organization that provides services for individuals who are homeless or experiencing a mental health crisis.

Ms. Becker regularly rides with Officer Meyer and has worked with him when he has responded to calls from Transitional Living. "He is a very professional Officer who knows and does his job, but still exhibits the empathy and caring that compliment any department," she wrote. But there is more to the story... lots more.

Ms. Becker credits Aaron with saving the life of young man at Transitional Living. The lifesaving effort didn't occur during an accident or other physical intervention. Instead Aaron became involved with the young man during his darkest hour. It was then that Aaron expressed his heartfelt concern for the young man and encouraged him into mental health services. The young man said that he felt that Officer Meyer actually cared about him and whether or not if he lived or died.

In her letter nominating Aaron for a STAR Award, she wrote that he is "a positive reflection on the Fairfield Police Department and an asset to the Fairfield Community."

Water Division Employees

The past winter was a harsh one. It was a bad winter for water mains as well. On Tuesday, February 14, the Water Division was notified of an issue with a major water main on Route 4 in front of Kirsch's Automotive and across from Fairfield Middle School. Fortunately, the break was not so catastrophic that it needed to be repaired immediately, giving crews time to notify area businesses of a repair schedule so they could better prepare for a total shutdown of water service during the main's replacement.

Timing of repairs was critical since a nearby dialysis center needed to prepare schedules for the water outage during repairs. As a result, the permanent fix was scheduled for Saturday, February 20.

In the meantime, however, it was discovered that the problem had also involved the water service line to the school, requiring attention sooner than the scheduled repair work several days later. But schools had already closed several times for winter weather, forcing students into a make-up situation. To minimize the affect on the school, the interim repair was scheduled after school on February 16. Gary Hoskins, Marc Lorance and Ron Zabel worked until 1:00 a.m. to repair the leak that directly impacted the school's service line. During the repairs, traffic had to be maintained and the work area secured. In addition, the crew worked in the dark during what proved to become a major snow event.

Beginning at approximately 6:00 a.m., on that Saturday, February 20, employees Jason Blevens, Todd Bradbury, Greg Cooper, Gary Hoskins and Ronald Zabel then tackled the repairs to the larger main break on Route 4 until they finally completed the project at approximately 6:30 p.m. During this time, the employees were responsible for directing traffic around the work site and maintaining a safe work environment.

All these employees demonstrated the qualities of a STAR employee during the repairs: They provided quality service by determining the best possible times to disrupt the water service and providing the notifications well in advance of the repairs.

Steve Collins

Steve Collins is the Information Technology Analyst assigned to Fairfield's Justice Center. Demands are high to maintain computer operations at the Municipal Court and the Police Department. He "is always responsive to our requests for assistance and quickly corrects our problems," noted his nominator.

Despite his ongoing responsibilities, Steve found time to assist two different attorneys who needed help in viewing videotaped evidence. The first problem involved the play-back of a video from a dash mounted police camera. The attorney did not understand how to open the file, so Steve produced a copy of the file and demonstrated the procedure to the attorney.

The other issue requiring Steve's support was with a disc that an attorney had from an Ohio State Highway Patrol arrest which was recorded in a format that was not familiar to the attorney or prosecutor. Once again, Steve took the time to demonstrate and explain the procedure so the evidence could be reviewed.

Fairfield is always interested in knowing of employees worthy of STAR status, defined as when a staff member exhibits the qualities of Service, Teamwork, Above and beyond performance, and Reliability. If you know of such a person deserving of special recognition, contact the City Manager's Office at 867-5350 to offer details

Citizen Police Academy seeks recruits for fall class

The fall Citizen Police Academy will begin in September. Classes meet on 10 consecutive Mondays from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. at the Fairfield Police Department.

The class is open to adults who live or work in the City of Fairfield. To apply, call Officer Dennis Valentini at 896-8292.

Last call for entries in the Beautiful Fairfield contest

There's still time to enter the 2010 edition of the Beautiful Fairfield Home Improvement Contest, a friendly competition among residents who recently have undertaken (or will be starting) an interior/exterior improvement project, a significant exterior landscaping project, or a "green" project, which is a new division this year. The "green" category can include a home/landscape project that protects the environment, re-uses/protects natural resources, and/or reduces energy consumption.

Winners will receive a $500 gift certificate to Jungle Jim's or Kroger for first place or one of two $250 gift certificate for runners-up. In the new "green" project category, judges will award up to $1,000 in gift certificates as they feel projects are justified. Projects must have obtained all required permits.

Entries should include one "before" and one "after" picture, along with a brief project description (100 words or less). Entries will be accepted until 4:30 p.m. on September 17. Winners will be announced in October.

CodeRED weather warning service clarified

The City of Fairfield subscribes both to the CodeRED emergency communications network and to its associated weather warning service for Fairfield residents. While CodeRED emergency messages are generated directly by City personnel and targeted to specific areas or citywide, weather warnings are triggered directly by National Weather Service warning messages for specific areas in a storm's path. When residents register their phone numbers for CodeRED messages, they have the opportunity to opt out of all or selected weather warnings. After registering, however, two different procedures are required to remove numbers from the separate calling lists.

Residents may contact the Fairfield emergency dispatch center at 829-8201 to be placed on a "do not call" list for emergency messages, but discontinuance of weather warning calls requires a call to 1-800-566-9780.

While some residents have indicated a desire not to receive the weather warning calls, City officials urge residents to consider the value of those targeted warnings. There are three types of weather warning calls: severe weather, tornado, and flash flood. When registering for weather warning calls, residents can specify which, if any, of these three types of calls are directed to a particular phone number. As with all CodeRED notifications, every phone number must be associated with a particular Fairfield address. Advanced storm tracking technology identifies those addresses in the path of the severe weather (not countywide or citywide notices) and places calls to those phone numbers without additional human intervention to slow the notifications. This becomes even more critical if a tornado or flash flooding is approaching during the night, when television, radio broadcasts and sirens are ineffective. Weather warning calls are only delivered for severe weather WARNINGS. Weather warning calls are not delivered for severe weather WATCHES.

Registering for all CodeRED services is available through the City's website www.fairfield-city.org.
