Swine City Brewing Brings A Brewery to Fairfield

Fairfield will soon have its very own hometown brewery, Swine City Brewing, opening later this year at 4614 Industry Drive at the corner of Symmes Road and Industry Drive. This family and employee-owned brewery will be led by a local team consisting of Dan and Debby Ebben, Claire Von Saucken, Jeffrey Herring, Chris Schulz, and Justin "Pee Paw" Chaney.

When asked why they chose Fairfield, Dan Ebben said "This is a great drinking and arts community, but I have to drive 20-30 minutes to drink at a brewery."

Swine City wants to add what it perceives to be a missing element to Fairfield, aiming to be a community gathering place with live music on the patio, food trucks, and events.

So, what kind of beer will Swine City brew? The owners say they won't bore you with the same old beers.

Swine City will offer several regular beers including a blonde ale, but its focus will be on the ever-changing tap list.

"We have a 10 barrel system which will allow for more creativity and variety," Ebben said.

Jeff Herring added "We have a great understanding of the history of Greater Cincinnati and Butler County, so we know what people like." Justin "Pee Paw" Chaney specializes in saisons, a type of floral, rustic French beer that uses wild yeast to yield a peppery, sometimes tart flavor.

The name "Swine City" pays homage to Cincinnati being known as "Porkopolis" due to its history as a meat-packing town. To further the Fairfield connection, the tap room bar was built using wood from an old barn at a local hops farm on John Gray Road, one of the oldest farms in Fairfield.

Swine City will initially be open from Thursday through Sunday. Check out www.swinecitybrewing.com for updates and links to social media accounts.
